INTRODUCTION

In 1986, when I first began doing family history research, I was at a loss as to where to begin finding information about my father's paternal ancestors, our Dow family line.

My first cousin, Edgar Lawrence Dow III (Ted) [RN 19], mentioned to me early on that a friend of his had told him about a book he had come across about the Dow family and wondered if Ted had ever seen it or if his family was in it. Ted had found a copy of the book in the University of California Library in Berkeley CA. He told me that he spent over an hour looking through the book and its index and was unable to find anything or anyone mentioned in it that he thought was related to our family.

I first found a copy of this book, called The Book of Dow, at the Sutro Library in San Francisco CA, and did the same thing Ted had done. I also was unable to find anything or anyone that I thought was related to our family. I was very impressed with the book, however. Its size, organization, numbering system, extensive index and the vast number of people and family groups it contained gave me the impression it must somewhere contain someone related to our family. I came away with the feeling that by spending a great deal more time turning its pages and reading every entry, eventually a connection to our family might be found.

In November 1988, while I was in London on a business trip, I happened into a used book store\(4\) in Knightsbridge and was browsing through their genealogy book section. The owner struck up a conversation with me, asked my name and surprised me by announcing that he had an original copy of the The Book of Dow in nice condition and asked if I would be interested in it. I jumped at the chance to acquire it for the equivalent of $80 and lugged the weighty volume home across the Atlantic in my luggage.

In the subsequent year, I spent hours thumbing through this huge volume hoping to find something that looked familiar. After many hours I began to understand more about how the book was organized and to realize the authors frustration of having a lot of information about a lot of Dow lines that he was not able to connect to others. In some cases, he had made assumptions which were not accurate that resulted in some Dow's being shown in sections of the book to which they did not belong.

Finally after many, many hours of study, I came across the first Dow listing that I knew was part of my family. This in turn led to others and eventually to the discovery of our whole line in the book and to an understanding about how the author had identified and numbered members of our family in an incorrect way, attaching them to the wrong lines.

In the mid 1990s, I was able to buy a second original copy of this book that was in better condition and cheaper than the first. In 1998, I began noticing that reproductions of the book\(5\) were available from the Higginson Book Company of Salem MA for $39.

FOREWORD

The Book of Dow is 7-1/4 inches wide, 10-1/2 inches high, and 3 inches thick. It contains 1013 pages. The first 520 pages are devoted to the "a" line of Henry Dow 1637, in Book One\(6\). Pages 521-541 are devoted to the Nudd line.

Book Two, the descendants of Thomas Dow of Newbury in 1639, the "b" line, begins on page 545 and continues through page 747. This is the line to which our Dow family is related.

Pages 747 through 750 cover the "c" line; page 751 the "d" line; pages 752 through 754 the "e" line; pages 755 through 757 the "f" line; pages 758 through 763 the "g" line. Appendix I contains Dows in the Census of 1790 (pages 764 through 768; Appendix II contains Dows and Nudds in Revolutionary War Rosters (pages 769 through 778). The index to the first 778 pages of the book starts on page 779 and continues through page 938. Beginning on page 984 and continuing through 1013 is a supplement containing additions, corrections and an index to the supplement.

Reproduced below are a number of pages extracted from The Book of Dow that I feel are of particular interest to members of our family. Included are the following categories of material/pages from the book:

BOOK TWO
DESCENDANTS OF THOMAS DOW [RN 825] b

OF NEWBURY IN 1639

HERE beginneth the chronicles of a family of Dow, absolutely unrelated to the preceding, of unknown origin, possibly of different nationality, surely poor, much poorer than their average neighbor, actually suffering from lack of suitable food, illiterate (altho ability to read and write was not general in the colonies). On the new soil this family developed wonderfully, -one member in the second generation rising decidedly above the average in ability and prosperity. The fourth generation included very substantial men. The family progressed until its influence on the nation as a whole has been second to few. It has been distinctly a warrior race, sharing in the earliest fighting for preservation against the Indians, then for colonial defense, for independence, and in the Civil war. It is remarkable that among the home towns of this family, -Salem, Methuen and Plaistow, not one adult male Dow of good health remained at home during the Revolution.

In the list of original grantees of Newbury, Mass, 1639 occurs the name of Thomas Dow. The origin of Newbury is strangely absent from the records. Nothing is known of the vessel which carried them; none of them appear on other lists or in other places. There is a vague tradition that Thomas Dow came in 1637, but this seems error arising from the fact that Henry Dow came in 1637. The best presumption is that the founders of Newbury came together and in 1639, probably from some English seaport. All else is speculation without evidence. At all events he was in Newbury in 1639 with wife Phebe\(7\) and at least one child. His house was in what is now called Newburyport, on the southerly side of Greenleaf's Lane (now State St) leading to Watt's Cellar. He next appears as being admitted a freeman by the General Court June 22, 1642. This does not imply any previous condition of non-freedom, indenture or lack of property qualifications. The term "freeman" was established in the first charter of the Massachusetts Bay Colony applied to such persons as took an oath of allegiance and were admitted by formal vote of the General Court. It lasted until the second charter changed the colony into a province. A freeholder was one who by grant, purchase or inheritance was entitled to a share of the "Commons," or undivided lands. The freeman alone could vote in the nomination of magistrates and deputies to the General Court. A freeholder need not be a freeman or vice versa. He might be neither, yet be qualified to vote in all town affairs. All inhabitants could vote on any question involving raising money. Thomas Dow was a freeholder from his arrival by reason of the original grant of his Newbury homestead; he continued a freeholder when he sold this and bought land in Haverhill.

There is probably no immigrant to America for whose antecedents more vigorous search has been made by professional and amateur genealogists. Yet, not the slightest trace has ever been discovered. At one time Richard Sylvester Dow bcdebejc undertook the task, hoping make the needed discoveries in time for a forthcoming history of Essex County. He himself could give no time to the work and employed professional aid. After sending an expedition to England and collecting a mass of data (all wholly irrelevant), and after spending several thousand dollars, his only reward was in proving that Thomas was none of the numerous of the name whom it was suspected that he might be. His professionals got together considerable material on the Dows here, but their work is often so misleading as to be rather worse than useless, no part of it usable without independent proof. The antecedents of Henry Dow, immigrant of 1637, being known, the searchers began by assuming that the two were brothers or near relatives. This gave them a pleasant outing in Norfolk Co with salary and expenses paid. They even failed to hit upon the item in Runham parish register showing that Henry Dow had a brother Thomas 14 years too old to fit the Newbury and that this Thomas had a family and died on his inherited property in Runham. Moreover, they ignored the obvious fact that, while Henry Dow had more than average education, Thomas Dow could not read; that for five years Henry and Thomas lived in adjoining towns and for ten years thereafter they were but 15 miles apart, without the slightest evidence that one knew of the existence of the other.

The investigators next turned to Wiltshire, because one Francis Dow had come from there and returned there; but he had an only child, Peter. This made no difference; they searched for some kinsman

Thomas, disregarding as before that our Thomas could not read and Francis was of the landed gentry and mayor of a city. To Stratford they next went, because a Thomas Dow of Stratford had a wife Phoebe. They did not hurry to weigh the patent evidence. Simon Fenn, clothier of Dedham, Essex, bequeathed money Jan 16, 1609, to his dau Phoebe, wife of Thomas Dowe of Stratford. Jan 10, 1615, Phoebe got another legacy from a kinswoman, being then called Phoebe Dow, wid. This Thomas Dow is about 40 years too old to fit and some curious searcher has since located all his family in Stratford. The investigators were then compelled to turn to a general search, published probate records being the most accessible field. They prepared lists of wills, over 200 of them, from every county in England, of Dow, Doue, Dove or any other similar spelling. Results wholly negative. They scanned every leatee, in hope that they might find from some parish rec that such had a son Thomas. They found of about right age a Robert Dowe of London, Bridget Dowe, wid of Thomas, legatees of their sister, Ann Colston, wid of Bristol 1620. They canvassed William Dowe and Mary, his wife, of 1620, she the dau of John Cossie of Baudsey, Suffolk. James Deowe is a new spelling; he was an appraiser May 1620 in Beamister, Dorset. Robert Dowe was a legatee in Exeter 1620. Thomas Dow, witness to a will in Newburye, Berks, 1620, raised their hopes from coincidence in name of place, altho presumptive age forbade. The number of Dow in Ireland can be imagined from the circumstance that 12 Thomas Dows were buried in Dublin in a single year. In Scotland during the 50 years preceding 1639 the number of recorded Thomas Dows could not be confined to a page.

One can only turn to evidence drawn from Thomas and Phebe\(8\) themselves. There is nothing in the religion of either to afford a clue, for there was but one church in Haverhill, and Newbury. Thomas Dow was as religious as his neighbors, but this proves nothing except that he was a Puritan in Massachusetts. Could he be a Scotchman? The Scotch Dow were never an independent family; many of them were in Clan Buchanan, but there were some in almost every clan, indicating that the name was assumed by individuals without any concert whatever. The investigators did not look up any Scotch records; hunting would be like seeking a needle in a haystack. There was a Thomas Dow of Berriehell of Tullibagles, Methven Parish, near Perth, who made a will Aug 19, 1609, but he had no son Thomas; and there were a score of Thomas Dow within a few miles. There was no Scotch migration to America for many years after this, but this does not preclude the possibility of some individual getting from Scotland to England and joining a party to America. Moreover, any Scotchman joining a party of emigrants would be a marked man, living socially more or less apart.

An idea that our Thomas Dow of Newbury possessed a distinctive Plaid or tartan is based wholly on a misunderstanding. Over 20 years ago a lady of Dow descent while visiting Edinburg was shown a Dow plaid and bought a quantity, distributing samples to such Dows as she knew or subsequently met. Some one who knew of the interest taken in the identity of Thomas Dow suggested that this might be his plaid and so the story grew. There are now some who assert positively that this Plaid was worn by Thomas Dow of Newbury. This is absolutely untrue. It is well known that the canny Scotch manufacturers keep lines of plaid labelled to suit any name ever known in Scotland. There are plenty of retailers who will supply a plaid for any name and will swear the Schmidts or O'Flahertys have worn it for a thousand years. The patterns are generally chosen with some care, so this particular plaid is a variant of the Buchanan. A few years ago experts looked at it once again. None admitted knowing it. Only a few were bold enough to call it a fake. One said plainly that it was a fabrication, not a true tartan, and was designed recently as resembling and varying from the Buchanan.

Whatever presumptive evidence there may be (and there may not be any) comes from the will of Thomas or the attached words of Phebe his wife. Here and there a phrase faintly suggests the language or national canniness. Phebe's name was either Latly or Latty. The exact wording in the will seems to be "I, Phoebe Latly wife of Thomas." A photographic copy proves that latly begins with a small l. It also shows the cross bar of the t prolonged, as tho the writer began to write latty when his ink failed. The Author believes her name was Latty, because that is a name, while Latly is not. Perhaps this couple came from that part of the Highlands where Thrums might be, perhaps truth is stranger than fiction, perhaps Sir James Barrie is unwittingly a better genealogist than we, and Rob Dow, literary sawyer of Thrums and Aaron Latta, weaver of Thrums, are the true kin of this Newbury and Haverhill couple. This entails an unwelcome suggestion, as there was at the time no Scotch migration. Thomas, gillie, might have married Phebe, dairy maid, and had a son John; not liking his outlook, might have crossed the border and joined a Puritan party to America. In those days a runaway gillie was hauled back as ignominiously as a negro in 1850. If there was a runaway of this kind, it would be likely that the man would take a new name for concealment; if so, Dow was a common and general name, not attributable to any one clan or locality. The Author does not entertain this theory; merely cannot dismiss it until the truth comes out. Some day the marriage rec or birth of their son may be discovered, but if so, it will be by chance.

The American career of Thomas was neither obscure nor conspicuous. He was poorer than most of his neighbors, for his whole estate was appraised at less than 96 pounds. He lived 14 years in Newbury, during which time (as we shall see under be) his children had not sufficient nourishment. The rec shows that his Newbury house was conveyed to John Bartlett May 29, 1660 (book 3, p 177, Ipswich series). Thomas was dead by this time so that the date must be of a belated recording Norfolk rec 1, p 122, shows: Richard Ormsby of Haverhill to Thomas Dow of Newbury, house and house lot cont 4 a more or less, with all appurtenances and 5 accommodations for two and fifty pounds, tenn shilling to be paid as appears by a bill of sale which the aforesaid Thomas Dow has given me under his hand. Dated 10 November 1653

Rec 18 May 1662

Richard Littlehale wit
John Clement wit

Here is a house and 9 acres of land for less than $260. Haverhill real estate was cheap, probably far cheaper than Newbury, it being a new town, on the frontier, a bulwark of the region of which Boston was the well protected center, soon to be the scene of the greatest amount of Indian fighting where no one was safe and every one walked with gun in hand. Thomas did none of the fighting; he died May 31, 1654, "ae about 39." This must be nearly correct. It is also definitely stated that he was the first white adult to die in Haverhill. Not that Haverhill was an unusually healthy place, nor its inhabitants gifted with longevity. It was a new town; some one had to go first, and Thomas Dow happened to be the one, living there scarcely over 6 months.

His will is nuncupative, made two days before his death:

"The last will and testament of Thomas Dowe as it was delevered or expressed by him on the 29th day of May being in ye yeare 1654.

I, Thomas Dow, although weake in body yet of perfect memory i doe desire to submit my will, to God's will and to dispose of my estate to my wife and children as followeth, leaving my wife to be the sole executor at present of all my vesable and personall estate.

First I do give unto my loving wiffe Pheby my tow oxen that are now hers and mine and three young beastes beinge now one yeaxe and upwards ould and on cow and two swine and all my houseold goods to be at her disposinge for ever.

Also my will is that my oldest son John Dowe at the age of twenty and one yeare ould shall ingioy as his inheritance al the land and housinge that I have bought in Haverhill and to pay in to his other brothers thomas and Stephen and to his 2 sisters mary and martha as I shall apoynt the house and land being thought to be worth three score pounds; my second son Thomas shal reseave at his age of 21 ten pounds or 5 pounds at his age and 5 pounds when he is 22 yeares and for my son Steven he shall reseave at his age of 21: or 5 pounds at 21 and 5 pounds at 22; as to my will is that John my son shal pay to his sister Mary and. his, sister Martha at theyre age of 21 ten pounds or 5 pounds apeace at 21 and 5 pounds apece at ther age of 22; as

The marke of

John Eaton (P)

Phebya (F) Dowe

Theo: Shatswell

This will was testified upon oath by ye witnesses in ye court held at Salisbury the (8) th off ye (2d) Mo: 1656.

John Eaton's mark resembles a P and that of Phehe an F, both showing unfamiliarity with the exact shape of the letters. Nevertheless, an effort was made to claim that this mark indicated her name was Fenn. The actual writing was done by Shatswell, of whom it may be said that he frequently spells a word twice the same way. It is quite clear that the first two paragraphs were composed by him and written down in advance as sure to meet the requirements. One can imagine the untion with which he put in the word vesable; it had a good sound, looked erudite, almost a legal term, and would add dignity to any will. The rest, which does not parse, was surely put down word by word as spoken laboredly by the dying Thomas. The last paragraph may have been dictated by Thomas, his wife assenting by a nod from time to time but the final "prouided" is surely her own. A distinguished genealogist of Dow descent still claims that the mark of Phebe proves that her maiden name began with F and he reads: "I, Pheby, lately wife of Thomas." Now, Shatswell is just as liable to spell a name with a small as a capital letter, and it is inconceivable that Phoebe, just called "my loving wiffe," and sitting beside her husband, who lived two days longer, could call herself lately a wife.

Hers was not a vast dowry, the cattle and household goods worth less than 10 pounds It is a pleasure to record that for seven years she had a home with her son John and that John made all the payments requieredI in the will. After that, she married John Eaton\(9\), witness to the will. He was a cooper of Salisbury, who came to Haverhill 1646, was selectman 1648, thrice married, with 7 children, 6 surviving to become step children of Phebe Dow. They returned to Salisbury, where he d Oct 29, 1668, she Nov 3, 1672.

All the children d Haverhill; younger b Newbury:

- a John, a minor in 1654, hence b later than 1633, presumably in Europe; not improbably 1638
- b Thomas\(10\), probably b 1640 in Newbury
- c Stephen b Newbury Mch 29, 1642
- d Mary b Apr 16, 160
- e Martha b June 1, 1648

John Dow ba d Nov 26, 1672, cooper of Haverhill; freeman. 1666; on muster roll of Ensign Moses Higgins, assigned to sixth garrison. The sons of Thomas Dow were not strong, possibly early privations worked against them. John prospered moderately, for he made all payments charged to him in his father's will, kept his own land and was able to buy the allotment made in the fifth division to one Coffin. He and his brother Thomas appear as signers of the petition for the pardon of Maj. Robert Pike, a high minded man always in trouble with the authorities for denouncing the witchcraft persecution and supporting the right offree speech by lay preachers in the absence of regular preachers. He m Oct 23, 1665, Mary Page b May 3, 1646, 4th child of John and Mary (Marsh) of Hingham, later of Haverhill. The improbability of relationship of John Page and Robert Page of Hampton is discussed under abc. Hist Windham states that John Dow ba was the ancestor of the Atkinson Dow family, -a lapsus calami, for that family is fully accounted for coming from John Dow bcfi. John's children:

- a Mary b and d Haverhill Apr 1668
- b Josepb b Sept 20,1669; d Mch 16,1688-9, unnm
- c John b Nov 6,16772; not mentioned in Hoyt's Old Families

John d intestate. Apr 3, 1673, wid Mary Dow swore to the inventory of his estate (174 pounds 1 shilling 0 pence). July 14, 1673, she m 2nd Samuel Shepard. Joseph Dow bab chose her brother Onesiphorus Page as his guardian in 1686. Apparently Joseph was entitled to some overlooked property, for seven years after his death, May 4, 1696, Samuel Shepard and Mary, his wife, formally refused to administer Joseph's estate. After considerable delay it was administered by his cousin Samuel Dow bcb and the property divided among his surviving uncles and aunts (Essex Co Prob, vol 305, p 128). This argues that John Dow bac was not living and had no heirs, for such would be heirs-at-law. The matter needs more search, for there is a Haverhill line still unconnected, whose most frequently recurring name is John.

Mary (Page) Dow had 7 children by Samuel Shepard, of whom the youngest m Samuel Dow adk.

Titcomb, Early New England People, apparently started the widely printed error that Thomas Dow m Elizabeth Duston (Dustin or Dunster). Dorcas Kimball survived Thomas by eight years. Jospeh Dow bbbf\(23\) had a home of his own by 1735 in west parish, Amesbury, near the Haverhill Line. Records of this line were very meager, but Alton L Smith of Worcester, whose wife is a descendant, made a study of it of remarkable completeness, seeming not to have overlooked a single deed or any other reference to him. He bought and sold real estate often and moved from town to town with a frequency very unusual in those days. Aman of ability, he began a busines which reached its height under his grandchildren. From deeds he appears as a joiner in 1735; housewright 1739, inn holder, trader in 1754 and 1762, shipwright 1767; ;moved from Amesbury to Kingston 1744; in Haverhill most of the time 1760 to 1771; d Dec 8, 1780. Joseph Dow\(31\) bbbfa in Haverhill Apr 20, 1768, Judith Emery\(32\) whose sister Mary subsequently m his brother Henry. This line is not in Emery Gen. They had a brother who moved to N Y State. Another brother (or close relative) emigrated with the Dows to New Brunswick and has a posterity now in that Province.. A grandson says that his grandmother was Eliza Ann Emery\(33\), it is likely that Eliza was a niece and a 2nd wife. Judith's name appears in deeds until the family disappears from Mass in 1771. Joseph remained closely associated with his father in shipwrighting and land speculation. It is not easy to distinguish between them in deeds, as both had wives Judith. The Chelmsford roster of troops for the 1760 Canadian campaign contains Joseph Dow b Amesbury, 17, of Chelmsford. For some campaign (probably this one) he secured his cousin Gideon Colby as substitute. In 1765 he received land in Haverhill from his father, which he sold Jan 5, 1771, to James McHard. From this time he drops absolutely out of sight until he reappears in New Brunswick 1801. He had business interests in Dracut and Goffstown and family tradition calls one of his sons Ipswich, a suggestive name.

Prior to 1783 New Brunswick had almost no population and was part of Nova Scotia. In the spring of 1783 a large party of colonists from Mass and adjoining States landed at the mouth of St John Rivers and took up lands. They had been tories and this was their first opportunity to reach British soil. Their lives had been made most unpleasant since 1775 and many of them had lived in strict seclusion. This party, however, contained no Dow.

The Provincial government was liberal in the matter of granting land; indeed it could well afford to be to get bona fide settlers. Land had been "squatted upon" and such was readily confirmed by Government title. To William Dow bcdhd land was granted in Charlotte Co in 1791, on which his kin had settled possibly as early as 1772. William Dow, probably not identical, got York Co land by grant, in 1815. On Deer Isl, N B, there is a place known for 150 years as Hannah Dow's Hill, origin of name uncertain.

The grants of land to the bbbfa line did not begin until 1803. A series of accidental discoveries have brought to light the movements of this family throughtout. Joseph Dow and wife were in Boston 1774 and he took paxt in the so-called Boston Tea Party\(34\). Just when he was converted to the tory cause we do not know. The people of Boston had no chance to join the Federals at Bunker Hill. They had to look on in silence, whatever their sympathies. Joseph was a ship builder already; under the British occupation of the city he was the best man at that trade in the place. He was kept busy and well paid. Family tradition says that a son of Joseph was born in or near Haverhill 1783. This is absent in the well kept Haverhill rec, and is doubtful, unless the family was there in hiding. When the British evacuated Boston, the position of the tories was precarious. A fairly large party fled; among them was Joseph Dow and at least three members of the allied family of Emery. These subsequently followed Joseph to New Brunswick, where their descendants are plenty, some being quite prominent merchants in St John today. They took refuge first on the uninhabited island of Southport, just outside of Wiscasset, Me. Possibly Henry Dow bbbfh went there first. They traveled in a boat of Joseph's own making and were successful in taking all portable property, tools for ship-building being a prime necessity.

The stay at Southport lasted twenty years. Here Judith Emery died and Joseph took a second wife, Eliza Ann Emery.\(35\) Here were born probably eight children. Here a ship yard was built and many vessels launched, mostly of the schooner type. It is a family tradition that Joseph built the first schooner known to Maine. Altho Southport had no money and needed none, except for taxes, no government existing for years, Joseph and his associates became comparatively wealthy, wealth consisting of vessels. They set up a coasting trade and their boats became well known from Halifax to Boston. St John, N B, was of course a regular port of call and the Dow vessels became well known to the Provincial government. The Governor himself, realizing that the Province lacked good builders, invited Joseph Dow to locate there, promising ample lands, virgin timber tracts and deep water. Joseph accepted, and the place chosen was at the junction of the St John and Oromocto Rivers. The first grant, in Sunbury Co, was made in 1803 to Aps Dow. This is Absalom bbbfaf. In 1810 John and William got additional grants. Joseph Dow Jr got a grant in 1810 and another in 1818. He was by this time Joseph Dow, as his father had joined the great majority. If our theory is correct, a 1st born of Joseph and Judith remained in Southport. The rest developed the great ship-building business begun at Oromocto. There was some sort of partnership, but how extensive or lasting is not known. Very naturally, however, the whole family, wealthy and aristocratic, considered themselves tory of tories. In Oromocto dwelt 6 sons, 1 dau:

x(36) Thomas; the son who elected to stay in Southport

a Joseph(37), surely the grantee of 1810; genealogically untraced

b John(38) b Jan 12, 1783 - regarded as the head of the family

c William(39); a grantee but genealogical-ly untraced

SIXTH and SEVENTH GENERATION BACKGROUND INFORMATION (bbbfab,bbbfa)

As noted immediately above, John Dow b. 12 January 1783, bbbfab (just "b" in the above table), was regarded as the "head of the family". By this it is meant that he was considered the head of the Joseph Dow & [RN3282], bbbfa, family of children that started and operated the shipping building enterprise in Oromoncto, Sunbury County, New Brunswick, as described on the pages immediately below (Pages 561 through 565).

The discription that follows below are extremely important to the understanding of why many our Dow line, that at first all went to New Brunswick from New England, ultimately left to return to New England. It explains why our direct Dow line (i.e., William Dow [RN 620], bbbfaab, was in the Oromoncto area of Sunbury County and later the Kingsclear area of York County, NB, and why our direct line ultimately moved away from that area and went to Carleton County, NB.

Although the author of The Book of Dow, described our direct ancestor, Joseph Dow & [RN3282], bbbfaa, (just "a" in the above table), as "genealogically untraced", he did note that Joseph was "surely the grantee of 1810 (i.e., he was the "Joseph Dow" in New Brunswick land records that was granted land from the Crown in 1810). Our Joseph was closely associated in partnership with his brothers in the ship building operations in Oromoncto in Sunbury County (at the junction of the Oromoncto and St. John Rivers) and when that operation failed, he failed too. It was Joseph's two son's, William Dow [RN 620], bbbfaab, (my great great grandfather) and John Dow [RN 1432], bbbfaac, (as well as their three sisters), though who did not return to New England like many in the associated family did. They remained in the general area of Oromonto (i.e., in or around Kingsclear, York County, NB) and then both moved their families upriver to Carleton County, NB, where they both remained until their deaths.

William Dow [RN 620] bbbfaab and John Dow [RN1432] bbbfaac, who were members of the seventh generation, remained in New Brunswick. It was not until the eighth generation of our direct line, i.e., some of William's and John's children, that some of our direct family emigrated back to the United States.

Included below are pages 571, which gives some added insight into John Dow bbbfab under the description of his son Henry Dow bbbfae, and 572, which gives some insight in the oldest brother that did not go to New Brunswick, Thomas Dow bbbfax.

JOHN DOW(43) OF OROMOCTO AND HIS DESCENDANTS

Contributed by Sterling Tucker Dow, Kennebunk, Me

FOR the benefit of the family and for the preservation of what information we have, there are gathered here the fragments of knowledge we have of John Dow. The records of some of his children are not easy to trace, even though they come within the ken of relatives now living. No written word of him, of his times and environment exists, so that our sole source of information is the stories and accounts which have been handed down by word of mouth. More than a century has passed since his departure from Haverhill, Mass, to (what must have been) the wilds of New Brunswick, and 65 years have rolled around since his death at New Limerick, Me. How quickly we pass on and are forgotten and how many difficulties bestrew the path of him who attempts to reconstruct the lives of those of his line who passed on but a few years before! How much of interest would be added to this meager narrative could we but know the characteristics of John Dow, who his associates were, what motives actuated him and why; in fact, a thousand and one things of human interest which would picture him to his descendants. No one of his 17 children is now alive, so that the opportunity for securing first hand information about his home and business life is gone and we are forced to rely upon the scraps - and few enough they are at that - which these children have passed along to the next generation.

Even the parentage of John Dow is obscure, and while it is believed that he had brothers and sisters, the records of his native Haverhill reveal the names of none of them. Possibly in course of time it will be established that there were such, through a search of the parish records of Oromocto. Family tradition says his father was an immigrant to Ipswich, Mass, in 1773, but does not give his father's name. The same source names two brothers, Absalom and Ipswich, and one sister, Eunice. We have the record of Joseph Dow and of his marriage to Judith Emery in 1768 in Haverhill. The name of Emery had been well known in Haverhill for a century and this representative of the family is described as a woman of very superior character and of great native worth. Our Genealogist assigns these two to John Dow as his parents and much color is given to the assignment because the name of Emery persists to this day in the family. Indeed, no name has been used more, as may be seen if you have the interest and patience to read on. Obviously Joseph Dow could not have been an immigrant in 1773 and married Judith Emery in Haverhill in 1768. Assuming, then, that Joseph Dow was the father of John, one naturally asks: "How much farther back can his ancestry be traced?" Here again we refer to our Genealogist, who writes:

"You are descended from Thomas Dow and Phebe, his wife, original grantees of Newbury, Mass, 1639. We do not know whence he came; he was a Puritan."

What then do we know about John Dow? No personal picture of him is extant, so that we know nothing of his appearance, manner, or traits of character. The reader can only deduce, however, from the following that he was a man of more than average intelligence and ability. He was born in Haverhill, Mass, Jan 12, 1783. If, as it is believed, he was the son of Joseph, it is altogether probable that other children preceded him in the 15 years since the marriage of Joseph and Judith Emery. In 1803 he went to New Brunswick. Family tradition steps in once more with a reason for this change-because he was a Tory. This may have been, although the large number of Tories left New England at about the time of the evacuation of Boston by the British in the War of the Revolution. Without doubt feeling against the mother country still ran high in 1803, and in going to a British province he might have let it be known that he had tory sympathies in order to secure peace in his new surroundings and to keep on good terms with his neighbors. It is not believed that he became a British subject as he afterwards held town office in New Limerick, Me. The lack of record of his brothers and sisters in Haverhill leads to the belief that they accompanied him to the Province. At the junction of the Oromocto River with the St John he settled and became a builder of ships. His business prospered and he became a man of substance and of local prominence at least. Several full rigged ships came from his yard, among which are remembered the names of three: the "Rival," the "Sir Howard Douglass," named for the Governor of the Province, and the "Phoebe," named for his wife. Some of the vessels he built he operated himself between the Province and British ports. The Phoebe was one of these and was lost on a voyage to Liverpool, with no insurance.

On his 26th birthday John Dow was married to Phoebe Smith in Watertown Parish, Queens Co, New Brunswick. She was but sixteen, the date of her birth being Aug 30, 1793. Miss Margaret A Swift of Brunswick, Me (her great granddaughter) writes thus of Phoebe Smith:

"Mother tells us that her grandmother Phoebe Smith Dow's father was a rich man, so she was well educated and brought up in affluence, with her own pony and carriage, etc.

Another extract:

"After which they came to New Limerick to farm and Phoebe went right into the work to help retrieve, is even said to have picked up stones for their boundary, and how she was a very busy woman, was very generous in helping every one and gifted in many ways. They finally built themselves a fine new house and were in readiness to move in when fire destroyed their possessions. She (Mother) remembers her grandfather as a very grand old man, had very beautiful white hair worn longer than usual, and was of a very religious turn of mind."

Here is another picture from the capable pen of Mrs Mary E Dow of Briarcliff Manor:

"_____ used to tell me a great deal about the Dow family and I have a vivid impression of the patriarchal life in your great grandfather's family. Your grandmother told me that when she visited this large dignified house the farm laborers were all fed in a large basement dining room - often as many as sixty men at a time, and that your great grandmother, still young, very handsome and very "capable", managed the whole great establishment. She also found time in her leisure moments to hemstitch the ruffles for her little girls' white gowns and very possibly your great grandfather's ruffled shirts. I often wonder whether a large part of the good looks and great physical vigor of the Dow family did not come from her.

Here is portrayed a woman of no ordinary mould, and when it is remembered that seventeen children were born to her between 1811 and 1835 at Oromocto (eleven of whom reached adult age) our wonder increases. She is described as being of very slight physique but her strength must have been nothing short of marvelous. Just stop and review for a moment: brought up in affluence, married to a man who had his own way to make and whose successes and failures were large, the management of large establishments at Oromocto and New Limerick, the hardships incidental to life in a new country and the care of a family the size of which is well nigh unheard-of in these days, do you wonder that she lived to only 48?

John Dow prospered in his shipping business. His sons helped in rafting logs down the St John River to the mills which sawed them into lumber which constituted the outgoing cargoes of his ships. With increasing means came an increased establishment and we can readily understand why the family grew into the ways and habits of the well-to-do. Why should they not enjoy the fruits of their labor? One recorder reports that they became quite aristocratic, holding themselves in high esteem. We have all seen the like, have we not? About 1835 prosperity began to wane, due to two probable causes. The first was the loss of the good ship Phoebe uninsured [another vessel, the Eliza Ann (named for Eliza Ann Emery), is also spoken of as lost under similar circumstances]. No doubt this was a severe blow to the family finances. The second cause is given as the remission of duties on lumber entering British ports from the Baltic Sea, with which the provincial product could not compete. This put a quietus on the lumber export trade of New Brunswick, and, along with many others, John Dow failed.

The date of the departure of the family from Oromocto to found a new home at New Limerick is not known, but inasmuch as all but one of the children were born at Oromocto, it must have been very shortly after 1835. Knowing something of the farm he conducted there, it is inconceivable that his failure deprived him of everything. He had passed the age of 50 and had the numerous family hereinafter recorded. Some of the children were old enough to be of material help. We have read of the patriarchal home he and his able wife made for themselves at New Limerick, and it is difficult to believe that something was not saved with which to start it. The farm is known at this date as the Edward Hennigan place.

As Phoebe Smith died Nov 27, 1841, she did not live long after leaving Oromocto. John Dow lived on at New Limerick, his daughter Mary Frances taking the mother's place, and on Apr 21, 1852, surrounded by his family singing

When I can read my title clear
To mansions in the skies,
he passed on to the higher life.

Henry Dow bbbfae. His son in 1892 wrote to Edgard R Dow what he could recall about his grandsire. We are certain of our identifications because he and Absalom Smith Dow bbbfabi agree that their grandfather was Joseph Dow and grandmother Eliza Ann (Emery). This proves that Joseph m her prior to 1783. He is recalled as riding each morning from his home to the shipyard, generally with a dau on the saddle with him. He wore his pure white hair a little longer than was customary, in a queue tied with a ribbon. His silver breeches buckles are still a famiy heirloom. His son recalls that he was fond of expressing his tory sentiments. It is evident that he himself established the great shipyard, of which his son John became the head. What connection Henry Dow had with it is not apparent. He m Mary McMonegal.

Thomas Dow bbbfax. His d rec gives him b 1768, and he was surely an original settler in Southport. Thomas Dow bcdig is untraced but was 9 years older. There seems no other place possible to Thomas of Southport, and the more we cogitate, the mare probable it seems that our identification is correct. He was a man grown when his parents moved to N B; his interests were at Wiscasset, his wife presumably preferred it to the plan of pioneering all over again at Oromocto; moreover, he could not foresee the prosperity which Oromocto was to give. He was a ship calker, about the hardest job in all ship building.

SELECTED PAGES NOT ABOUT OUR FAMILY LINE

The vast majority of Dows in New Brunswick, and by far the largest Dow line there were the descendants of David Dow, the bcdg line, the youngest son of Stephen Dow, bcd.

This large group of Dow's left New England before and during the American Revolution, were Loyalists, and they for the most part settled along the St. John River, primarily in Majorville\(51\). When the Majorville settlement encountered bad economic times, many of this line returned to the United States. Most of those who remained, however, moved further up the St. John River and settled, at least initially, primarily in the area of Canterbury, York County, NB. Eventually some moved even further up the River to the area around and north of Woodstock, also.

This area of Canterbury was, and still is, generally known by the name "Dow Settlement". This Dow Settlement, in York County, and the many people with the Dow surname in that general area, both now and in the past, are a completely different line and group of Dows from those that our family is related to

Our direct family, when it left the Oromoncto/Burton areas of Sunbury County and the Kingsclear area of York County, moved to a completely different place called "Dow Settlement" (later called East Brighton and today non-existent) in Brighton Parish of Carleton County, New Brunswick, just a few miles east of Lower Brighton which is on the St. John River just north of Woodstock.

The bcdg Line

It took many years of research subsequent to the publication of The Book of Dow before it became apparent that our direct family line of Dows (the bbbfaa line) was , rather than part of the large bcdg line as has always been assumed, a separate group of Dows that came from New England (presumably Loyalists as were the bcdg line), settled in many of the same areas along the St. John River as did those of the bcdg line, and and the majority of which remained in New Brunswick for several generations.

I say "presumed Loyalists", only because it is not entirely clear whether those of our direct line (bbbfaa) were motivated to emigrate from the Southport area of Maine primarily because of political loyalties or because of economic reasons. Our direct line of Dows (bbbfaa) may have been more interested in building ships than supporting the King of England!

OUR FAMILY LINE NOT IN THE BOOK OF DOW

The Book of Dow was published in 1929, and represented a monumental amount of work.

As noted in several places above, a few members of our direct line who were in the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth generations and who were in the book, were incorrectly associated with another Dow line, not ours, by the author.

If the Book of Dow had instead been published seventy-two years later, in 2001, and assuming the author had correctly identified and indexed (i.e., numbered using his numbering system correctly) all of the known members of our direct line, shown below are the seventh through thirteenth generations that I know about:
